JIM MCGAULEY NAMED CHIEF OPERATING OFFICER OF K.TEK SYSTEMS INC.

Published: April 15, 2011

CLEARWATER, Fla. – K.Tek Systems Inc., a leading global provider of Internet and Web based technology solutions, proudly appointed Jim McGauley as its new Chief Operating Officer. His leadership role will further enhance K.Tek's commitment to providing exceptional technology solutions for organizations across all industries.

As Chief Operating Officer (COO), Jim directs the daily operation of every department within the company and commands all key functions of the organization. Jim's duty is to strengthen K.Tek Systems' business development model and facilitate the implementation of its growth strategy. His devotion to the management team positions Jim to be the catalyst for change, implementing strategies that cultivate confidence amongst the staff and fuels business growth. Jim's responsibilities encompass all aspects of the company's framework, including the global operation of K.Tek International, a holding company for all of Chief Executive Officer (CEO), Kimberly During's seventeen companies, of which K.Tek Systems Inc. is the forerunner. Consequently, Jim is tasked with managing the control and mitigation of risks while utilizing resources to propel the company's mission to provide consultative business solutions in the perpetually evolving Web-based technology landscape. "I am delighted that Jim McGauley has joined the K.Tek Systems team as our new COO. His vast knowledge of logistics, management, operations, and business best practices as well as his extensive technical skills make him the ultimate champion for understanding our clients and how we can translate our expertise to exceed their expectations," said Kimberly During, CEO of K.Tek International/K.Tek Systems Inc.

Jim understands the way businesses operate and utilizes that unique acumen to successfully communicate to their clients how K.Tek's custom integrated applications can streamline business processes and create profitable growth for companies across vertical markets. His amiable nature not only makes him an effective and respected leader amongst fellow K.Tek Systems employees, but also makes him exceptionally relatable to clients.

Prior to joining K.Tek Systems Inc., Jim graduated from Pace University in 1993 and started his career selling microchips for a large electronic components distribution company. He worked his way up the corporate ladder eventually becoming their senior operations manager. Later he worked as the senior project manager for an IT services and business consulting company, preceding his affiliation with K.Tek Systems.

In his more than fifteen years of experience in business operations, quality assurance and logistics management, Jim has been the impetus for change in each of his positions, working closely with fellow staff and clients to ensure profit yielding success. Jim's directives are transforming K.Tek Systems Inc. thereby renewing their emphasis on long-term client satisfaction. "I believe in fostering relationships with clients and for providing technology solutions to business challenges that are truly in the best interest of that client," said Mr. McGauley. His personal sense of integrity aligns with the business philosophy of K.Tek Systems, making him an integral asset not only to the company, but also a formidable ally of their clients.
